

Government Accountability

Good government is not an accident. Whether consciously or not, we are governed by the social contracts that we consent to. In a democratic society, we the people grant “the government” conditional permission to manage our public affairs.

We are responsible for our democratic civic integrity.

We must inform our leadership at all levels of government of our clear expectations.

We must institute accountability for their values, intentions and capacities.

Public election is a job interview for our public representation!

Every candidate should publicly declare their stance along with their commitment to annually review their goals and performance with their constituency.
